Points of Interest Along The Way

Points of Interest Along The Way

1. Across US 67 from downtown Pocahontas, stop into the visitor information center in the old train depot to learn about all the points of interest in Pocahontas and the northeast Arkansas/southeast Missouri area. Pick up a copy of the booklet "70+ Things To See and Do In and Around Pocahontas." Downtown Pocahontas has a monument and a marker on the site of the capture of Civil War General Jeff Thompson. The downtown area is dominated by the beautifully restored 1872 courthouse, and a town square with shopping, restaurants, an art gallery, dance studio, and other points of interest.
2. The town of Maynard features a wonderful old log cabin that houses a museum of pioneer life. The Cherokee Train of Tears went right through Maynard.
3. The Supply community was a point where 5 roads came together in pioneer days. A store was there to sell supplies to the settlers, and there's still a small store there today. There's also a historical marker giving information about the Trail of Tears that passed through Supply.
4. The Rumble route passes right by the 1828 Rice House log cabin, recently restored by the state of Arkansas and featuring numerous markers describing pioneer life at the old house in the early 19th century.
5. At Ravenden Springs the route passes Hall's Creek Canyon, with steep rock cliffs on either side of a good-sized creek. The rugged canyon has long been a hiking and camping area for the local people, and it includes a cave that was home to the first school in the state of Arkansas.
6. Davidsonville Historic State Park features full sized recreations of the outlines of Arkansas' first courthouse and land office on their original sites in the old town of Davidsonville. Once county seat for a huge county that included all of what's now northern Arkansas and southern Missouri, Davidsonville faded into history when major roads bypassed the town's location in the 1820's.
